

Weekly Market Dashboard: April 26, 2024

Market Overview

Back On Track

The major U.S. equity indices finished the week in positive territory for the first time in April, snapping a three-week stretch of declines. Bolstered by strong earnings results in the tech. sector, the Nasdaq and S&P 500 saw the largest gains, adding 4.2% and 2.7%, respectively. Meanwhile, the Dow rose a modest 0.7%.

Sticky Inflation

The Federal Reserve's preferred inflation measure – Core Personal Consumption Expenditures (PCE) – exhibited sustained pressure in March, accelerating 0.3% from the previous month and 2.8% on a yearly basis. While unchanged from February, this annual rate exceeded economists' estimates for a 2.6% rise, as inflation remains above the Fed's 2.0% target.

Growth Slowdown

The advance estimate of Q1 GDP saw the U.S. economy expand at a 1.6% annualized pace, coming in well below expectations for a 2.4% rise. While remaining in positive territory, this latest reading marked the second consecutive quarterly decline in GDP growth, and a notable slowdown from the 3.4% and 4.9% growth rates recorded in the fourth and third quarters of 2023, respectively.

Home Sales Surge

New home sales in the U.S. surged in the month of March, rising 8.8% to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 693,000 units. This most recent data represents the strongest pace since September 2023, and the largest monthly increase since December 2022.
